Johnson Foundation Suit For Overpass at College Rd. Will Be Heard on Friday

The Robert Wood Johnson Foundation's suit to halt construction on Princeton Forrestal Village, pending resolution of traffic concerns at Route 1 and College Road, will be heard Friday in Middlesex County Superior Court.

The charitable foundation that makes grants for the improvement of health care wants assurances that an overpass or underpass at College Road and Route 1 will be in place at the time Phase I of Princeton Forrestal Village is complete and ready for occupancy. The Foundation also seeks allocation of cost among the private developers and adjacent landowners — itself included — who will be the primary beneficiaries of such a grade-separated interchange.

The Plainsboro Planning Board gave final approval last week to the first of two phases planned by Toombs Development Company of New Canaan, Conn., as Princeton Forrestal Village. Groundbreaking is expected late this summer or early fall on Phase I, located on 138 acres on the Princeton side of Route 1. The tract is owned by Princeton University as part of its Princeton Forrestal Center.

Phase I includes a 300-room Marriott hotel, more than 100 ... shops and restaurants ... office space above, a bank, child-care center, athletic club and parking. Phase II will consist of 800,000 square feet of office space to be constructed at a later date in two office campuses to the south and west of the Village center.

The Robert Wood Johnson Foundation brought suit when the Plainsboro Planning Board refused to grant additional time for a Foundation-sponsored traffic report that was at variance with the developer's report. According to Frank Karel, vice-president for communications, the Foundation believes that to allow the Forrestal Village complex to pro-

VILLAGE CELEBRATES ANNIVERSARY: Ten years ago this July the first residents began moving into Princeton Community Village. Last Saturday the residents joined with management and board members of the sponsoring Princeton Community Housing Inc. to celebrate with a picnic on the grounds (see story page 3). Rita Wilson, PCV on-site office manager, cut the cake baked by Helena Basterova, while Eric McEwen waited patiently for his piece.

Borough, Township Asked to Back Advisory Council for Rt. 1 Corridor

Along with 12 other municipalities that have a stake in the management of growth along the Route 1 corridor, Princeton Borough and Township will be asked to support an advisory council whose primary purpose would be to draw up a regional plan for the Route 1 corridor. The council would be made up of two representatives from each of the 14 affected municipalities and from the counties.

The proposal for a council to develop a regional plan that could be incorporated in each municipality's master plan was made last Thursday at a dinner attended by some 100 municipal, county and civic elected officials, planners and administrators. The proposal is the recommendation of the U.S. Route 1 Study Group, an informal group made up of professional staffs from 10 of the municipalities affected by Route 1 growth.

This group was formed in January in an effort to head off a proposal by Assembly Speaker Alan Karcher (D. Middlesex) for the creation of a state agency to regulate growth in the area. The study group has been meeting on a regular basis with support from the Middlesex - Somerset - Mercer (MSM) Regional Study Council. Last week's dinner, which included lengthy reports on infrastructure from the planning directors of both Middlesex and Mercer Counties, was an effort to bring municipal officials up to date on the work of the Route 1 Study Group.

The traffic carrying capacity of Route 1 is the major issue facing the region, Jerry Bittner, South Brunswick Township Administrator, told the gathering. Mr Bittner has been acting as chairman of the study group.

He said the group had rejected the idea of "doing nothing" — retaining the status quo in effect. The group had also decided that legal battles were "a waste of resources."

Instead, believing that local government is "crucial and necessary" and should be at the forefront of decisions affect-

Public Meeting on Route 92 Set For July 22 at Princeton High

The state Department of Transportation will hold a public meeting on Route 92 Monday, July 22, at 7:30 p.m. at Princeton High School.

A second informational meeting will be held at West Windsor-Plainsboro High School two nights later, Wednesday, July 24, at 7:30. Maps and charts will be set up in the auditoriums of each school one hour before the meeting begins.

According to John J. Mycoff, DOT area coordinator for community involvement, the meetings are to acquaint the public with the environmental and engineering data that the DOT has been gathering since the last public meetings on the controversial four-lane highway that is to provide a link between Route 206 and roadways east of Hightstown.

In February, 1984, the DOT announced five alternative alignments on which it would pursue further environmental impact and engineering studies. Three of these have now been eliminated, and the state is expected to continue studying two possibilities before settling on a final alignment.

One is the "original" or "preserved" alignment that cuts through Plainsboro and Cranbury to bypass Hightstown and connect with Route 33 near New Jersey Turnpike exit 8. This route is adamantly opposed by both Plainsboro and Cranbury because it would affect farmland and residential areas.

The other follows a more northerly route into South Brunswick, skirting the north tip of Plainsboro and avoiding Cranbury, to end up at Route 32 at exit 8A. If this route is chosen, the Hightstown Bypass will still be built, according to Mr. Mycoff.

Of more particular interest to Princeton and Montgomery residents is the alignment along the shared border between these two municipalities, and whether or not terminating Route 92 at Cherry Valley Road will in turn require the widening and possible relocation of Route 206 in a wide arc behind the Princeton Airport to a point near Arreton Road.

Mr. Mycoff says the DOT is "still studying" possible routes for the Princeton-Montgomery section of S-92. He left open the possibility that some decision might be reached by the time the public meetings are held in the third week of July.

Davidson's Wants 255 Nassau Site

Davidson's, a Princeton institution and the only supermarket downtown, is seeking to move into the building housing the Volvo dealership at 255 Nassau Street. The store's attorney, Christopher Baker of McCarthy & Schatzman, is scheduled to appear at the Borough Zoning Board meeting scheduled for Thursday evening at 8 p.m. to request a use variance.

However, a delay is possible because the Zoning Board, as of Tuesday night, was assured of only a four-person quorum. Five members are necessary to decide on the granting of a use variance.

It is reported that Davidson's lease at its present 172 Nassau Street location will not be renewed. Efforts to reach Leonard LaPlaca of Princeton, owner of the building, were unsuccessful.

William Davidson, the store's co-owner, said that the lease will be up in about a year. He has been looking for a larger location in town for the past ten years, but now the pressure to move has intensified.

He said the store would like very much to remain in Princeton. "We enjoy being here and have always had good relations with the people in town. If it is at all possible to stay, we want to."

Davidson's moved into its present store 30 years ago. It was the year the Princeton Shopping Center was built, and the A&P and Acme, both located downtown, moved out then. Davidson's moved into the former A&P store and Bellow's took over the Acme location.

William Davidson, the store's co-owner, said that the lease will be up in about a year. He has been looking for a larger location in town for the past ten years, but now the pressure to move has intensified.

He said the store would like very much to remain in Princeton. "We enjoy being here and have always had good relations with the people in town. If it is at all possible to stay, we want to."

Davidson's moved into its present store 30 years ago. It was the year the Princeton Shopping Center was built, and the A&P and Acme, both located downtown, moved out then. Davidson's moved into the former A&P store and Bellow's took over the Acme location.

Davidson's will ask permission to construct a 5,230 square foot addition to 255 Nassau Street. This would increase the existing floor area of 8,259 square feet to 13,489 square feet. Davidson's presently occupies about 9,600 square feet.

The building, which is owned by Luigi and Ercole Carnevale, who also own The Annex Restaurant, is in a service business zone. This sets a limit of 5,000 square feet for each establishment. Volvo of Princeton already exceeds the existing nonconforming use limit.

David Long, owner of the Volvo dealership, opposes Davidson's move. He said he has unsuccessfully bid to purchase the building and is being forced to move to a Route 1 location in Lawrence Township. He also said the store will create traffic congestion and unfair business competition.

The site has on-site parking, which will solve the parking problems Davidson's has been experiencing. However, the lot's entrance and exit are through an alleyway next to WaWa Market owned by Princeton University. It is believed that discussions are underway with the University to come to an agreement on the use of the alleyway.

The proposed new store will be 3,500 square feet larger than the present one. It will include a service meat department, a full service seafood department, a bakery, a salad bar, and a considerably enlarged deli department.

These departments would account for two-thirds of the additional space. The rest would be used to house an increased amount of traditional foods.

Mr. Davidson said that the new store, by any reasonable standards for supermarkets, would be very small. "Super Fresh is about two-and-a-half times the size of the store we're proposing," he added. "We would still be a small, intimate Princeton grocery store.

LOTTERY TOPS $5 BILLION. Now in 14th Year, The New Jersey Lottery, which sold its first 50-cent ticket on December 16, 1970, has gone over the $5 billion mark in gross sales.

The Lottery's on-line computerized numbers games have been the biggest generators of sales. The three numbers games accounted for more than $3.8 billion of the $5 billion figure.

The daily three-digit game, "Pick-It," introduced ten years ago, was responsible for half of the total. "Pick-4," introduced two years later, has produced approximately $670 million in sales. And the five-year-old weekly numbers game, "Pick-6 Lotto," has generated about $685 million in sales and is the lottery's fastest growing game.

Of the $5 billion collected by the lottery, about half went directly back to the players in prizes. The State has received $2 billion, or 41 percent, for aid to education and institutions.

The bulk of the balance has been paid in commissions to the nearly 4,000 lottery agents who sell tickets, and in contracts with companies that lease the computer sales network and print the tickets.

Princeton Community Village Celebrates Tenth Anniversary with Picnic on Pipeline

FRUIT OF THEIR LABORS: At Saturday's picnic celebrating the 10th anniversary of Princeton Community Village were Jim Floyd, far left, and Jack Wallace, second from right, mayors of Princeton Township at different times during the long struggle to get PCV built, Ted Vial, center, first and longeat serving president of Princeton Community Housing Inc., and Harriet Bryan, current PCH president.

There were multi-colored crepe paper streamers hanging from the bushes, games for the children, and the smell of hot dogs grilling as Princeton Community Village (PCV) celebrated its 10th anniversary with a picnic on the pipeline Saturday.

The anniversary marked ten years since the first residents moved into the subsidized housing development at the end of Bunn Drive. With a population of 600-650 residents living in 167 townhouses and 71 single-family apartments, PCV is Princeton's largest subsidized housing development.

It was built by Princeton Community Housing Inc. (PCH), a non-profit corporation formed by area churches and institutions to work with the state in constructing housing in Princeton for families in the low and middle income range.

Former Township mayors and former PCH presidents were on hand for the celebration, as well as current PCH board members and PCV management. Looking out at the groups of families picnicking on the grass, and children of both races intently cooperating in relay races, former Township Mayor Jack Wallace said he wished some of the sceptics could be present to see it working 10 years later.

Former Mayor Jim Floyd said jubilantly, "This has turned out to be one of the greatest things going in Princeton." Mary Ann Rees, who was president of PCH during construction of PCV, remarked that "the place looks just wonderful, and I am glad to be back. Seeing this makes up for all the impossible hours."

Lucy James, co-manager of the Village, presented awards: for the residents living the longest at the Village, to Concepcion and Aura Rodrigues; for the longest in the same apartment, Joan Hill; for the best gardener in both flower and vegetable categories, Mary Saltzman (there was unanimous approval of this choice); for the first baby to be born to a family in PCV, Christian Frazzetta, born December, 1975 (some disagreement about the truth of this);

Also, to the most dedicated cat lover who launched a program of permitting cats at the Village that has been a continuing success, to Sally Sharp; to the person who makes the most trips up and down Bunn Drive doing errands for others, to Charlotte Slider; to the tireless coordinator of the two Hilltop Road Races to

TRENTON ROUNDUP

The State Senate has approved an amended version of a bill that would help municipalities meet their Mount Laurel obligation to provide affordable housing.

The bill provides a one-year moratorium on the builder's remedy, which allows contractors to build four expensive units for every Mount Laurel unit they construct. It also calls for a $100 million set-aside of Housing and Mortgage Finance Agency bond funds plus a $25 million appropriation to fund low-cost housing.

The measure permits a municipality to transfer up to 50 percent of its affordable housing obligation to neighboring towns and a establishes a six-year period during which towns that have settled Mount Laurel cases could not be sued again.

The amended bill, which incorporated Governor Kean's proposals, received Republican backing. It is expected to come up for a vote in the Assembly on Thursday.

The Senate approved an $8.8 billion State budget for the fiscal year starting July 1. The budget embraces most of Gov. Kean's spending proposals, plus a $185 million supplemental budget bill to fund legislators' programs.

The combined $9 billion budget is slightly over 13 percent higher than the current year's spending.

No new taxes are called for in the budget, which includes a $270 million increase in state aid to education. It anticipates a surplus of $277 million for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1986, and includes money to fund a $625 million environmental package sponsored by the Democrats.

The Senate also approved giving $145 million in current surplus back to the state's residents by allowing them to deduct property taxes from their income tax bill.

The budget is expected to be approved by the Assembly on Thursday.

The Assembly has passed two bills aimed at teenage drinking. The first could result in a fine of up to $300 and a six-month driver's license suspension for anyone who lends a license to a juvenile to purchase alcoholic beverages.

The bill also provides that a person under 21 who uses another person's driver's license would be subject to a fine of $100, a six-month license suspension, and mandatory attendance at an alcohol education or treatment program.

The bill won unanimous approval in the Assembly. It will now be sent to the Senate for a vote.

The second bill attempting to control teenage drinking was sponsored by Sen. Gerald Stockman (D-Trenton). It would find anyone serving liquor on private property to a person under the legal drinking age of 21 guilty of a disorderly persons offense and liable for up to six months in jail and a $1,000 fine.

The bill provides exemptions if the alcohol is served by a parent, guardian or close relative, or in cases where parents have granted permission to someone else to serve the minor.

The legislation, which previously passed the Senate, will be sent to the Governor for his approval.

A "crime victim's bill of rights" was approved by the Assembly and will be sent to the Senate for action.

The bill broadens the field of what must be paid for by the criminal and changes the optional restitution law to make it mandatory.

The amounts would range from a maximum of $500 for a disorderly persons offense to up to $100,000 for first and second degree crimes.

The Senate approved a bill setting a minimum starting salary of $18,000 for teachers in the State. The measure will be sent to the Assembly for action.

Legislation that would double the personal exemptions in the New Jersey income tax from $1,000 to $2,000 was introduced by Assemblyman Thomas Paterniti, D-Middlesex.

Covered would be exemptions for each taxpayer, spouse and dependent family member. Exemptions for taxpayers over 65 and their spouses, as well as blind or disabled taxpayers and their spouses, would be increased from $2,000 to $4,000 under the proposed legislation.

Watching all the activity, Harriet Bryan, current president of PCH, commented on the way youngsters of different races and nationalities were playing with each other.

support among municipal officials and planning agencies. It would have set up a Central Corridor District Development Board with the power to overrule local planning and zoning boards in ten Mercer and Middlesex County municipalities, including the two Princetons.

The 21-member board was to have been empowered to provide a comprehensive approach to highway planning, residential and industrial growth, open space, and public utilities. It would have been allowed to undertake major improvements, including construction projects; sell bonds; purchase, lease, rehabilitate and sell properties; and invest money not in use.

Under the revised legislation, the new board — also containing 21 members — would be empowered primarily to design a transportation plan for the Route 1 corridor from Trenton to New Brunswick. After reviewing transportation impact statements of projects larger than 10,000 square feet, it would assess a fee based on the impact. The money collected would go for county and local road improvements or for local mass transportation projects.

This money would not be used to help fund improvements to Route 1, said Assemblyman Karcher. He added that this is the responsibility of the State, which should use part of the $3.3 billion Transportation Trust Fund for the roadway.

State officials have said that the fund cannot afford the $450 million that will be necessary to improve Route 1 while still maintaining its responsibility to the state's other transportation needs.

The new board would still draw up a regional plan, but it would no longer have veto power over local development proposals if they conflict with the plan. The only exception would be the holding of veto power over proposed development that would generate the kind of traffic likely to create havoc in the transportation plan.

Princeton Borough Mayor Barbara Sigmund, one of the few supporters of the original Karcher bill and spearhead of the Borough suit to control development on Route 1, said that the new plan, while better than nothing, will not meet the needs of the region because it focuses on only one aspect of regional need — transportation.

Prior to the vote that took the bill out of committee, Plainsboro Mayor Barbara Wright, an opponent of the measure, asked for more time for review by the affected municipalities and counties.

Samuel Hamill, executive director of the Middlesex-Somerset-Mercer Regional Study Council, also spoke in opposition to the bill. He called the new draft a limited single-purpose measure and one that

APARTMENT RANSACKED

On Nassau Street. A third-floor apartment on Nassau Street was entered Friday between 10:45 and 6:10 p.m. and ransacked.

Police report that a pane of glass in a front door had been broken with a rock to allow the intruder to reach in and unlock the door. Drawers were opened throughout the apartment but police said it is not known yet what was taken. Ptl. Anthony Federico investigated.

A stereo receiver valued at $110 and a cassette deck worth $160 were stolen overnight from the Third World Center on Olden Street.

Police said an investigation revealed the building had been unlocked sometime between 10 Friday evening and 9 the next morning.

Why Should We? When a member of the Quadrangle Club, 33 Prospect Avenue, returned about 11:20 Friday night, he found a rear basement door ajar. He told police later that he had left and locked the club three hours earlier.

Upon entering, he found two males and two females, all about 17, sitting at a table, drinking beer and talking.

"Well, I guess you guys are just leaving," the club member addressed them. "Why should we?" they replied.

Because, the club member responded, "that's my beer you're drinking."

When one of the youths asked if the member had change for a $20, he replied, "No" but he took the bill, police said, and the four intruders left.

In checking the premises, the club member found two six packs of Beck's beer missing. He also found a Beck's beer bottle had been thrown inside the club, breaking two panes of glass.

Entry to the building was gained, police said, by cutting a screen near a lock and unlocking a sliding glass window at the rear of the club.

TWO PURSES RIFLED

During Graduation Exercises. While two Princeton High School students were attending graduation exercises last Tuesday evening, a thief was rifling the purses which they had left of the floor of their parked cars.

One victim told police that $62 had been taken from her purse which she had left in her locked car parked on Walnut Lane next to the high school. She found her purse aloog the side of the car.

While Ptl. Charles Davall was investigating this theft, another student told him approximately $20 had been stolen from her pocketbook. She told the officer that she was certain she had locked her car.

In a small town in Vermont concerned craftsmen still make the stuff dreams are made of.

Even though we travel all over the world to bring home the best values and most innovative designs, we're delighted when we find exactly what we've been looking for right in our own backyard. The case in point here, a superbly crafted contemporary bedroom made in a small Vermont factory. Solidly built to last not for years but for generations, the workmen start with a solid hardwood inner frame. Then they finish each piece with details such as real wood drawers that slide smoothly on nylon and steel ball bearing glides. Stocked in oak, the complete bedroom, which includes many other pieces, may also be ordered in teak or walnut, or in white plastic laminate at slightly higher prices. Our American bedroom. It is the finest we have ever sold.

Two more radar detectors were both stolen the same day last week in the Township.

An employee of Opinion Research Corporation reported a $300 unit taken from her car parked in the ORC lot. A rear window had been partially lowered, she told police, because her dog was in the car.

An unlocked dirt bike worth $90 was taken last week from the rack in front of the public library, and an employee of Princeton University listed the theft of his $100 bike from a rack in front of Edwards Hall. It had been locked with a chain lock, police said.

A $170 bike left unlocked for 20 minutes was taken from the front wall of the Community Park pool building, and a $70 bike with a flat front tire was removed last week from a bike rack at Community Park School. The owner, a Linden Lane resident, told police it had been locked.

An unlocked bike valued at $125 was taken from the front lawn of its owner on Red Hill Road.

cle, both $20 for trespassing on private property without the owner's consent.

In Township court last week, Ruth Carlough, 207 Snowden Lane, was fined $300 for simple assault. She allegedly pushed a Township patrolman after he gave her a ticket.

Cesar E. Lithgow of Skillman was fined $65 for speeding and $35 each on charges of unlicensed driver and no registration in possession. Ronald D. Meck, 7 Paddock Drive, Lawrenceville, paid $65 for a red light violation.

Charged with DWI, Curtis R. Urstadt Jr., 34, of 19 Washington Road, Princeton Junction, has been charged by Township police with driving while intoxicated and being an unlicensed driver.

In responding to a 1:47 call Thursday morning of a possible drunken driver, police found Urstadt asleep behind the wheel of his car, which was in the travel portion of the west lane of Faculty Road with its lights on and engine running.

He was given balance tests at the scene and then taken to police headquarters where he consented to taking a breath test.

LIMB FALLS ON CAR

During Storm Monday. During Monday's violent thunderstorm, a large portion of a tree on Alexander Street between Dickinson and Mercer fell on the roof a car.

The driver, 35-year-old Kazuko Honda of Magie Apartments, Faculty Road, said, "All of a sudden I heard a loud noise; I didn't know what was happening."

The limb pulled down power lines with it and blocked off traffic until Borough road crews were able to cut up the limb into pieces and clear the roadway.

Mrs. Honda escaped injury but the roof of her 1977 Ford Pinto was pushed in and dented. Public Service crews were on the scene repairing the lines for an estimated two hours, following the 3:45 incident.

Two more large tree limbs came down on Library Place. At 3:58, a fallen limb pulled down wires between Boudinot and Hodge Road and blocked traffic until it was cut up by road crews, and another limb crashed down at 4:05 in front of 118 Library Place, taking a section of iron fence with it.

A bolt of lightning struck near the Princeton Medical Center, knocking out power in the area. A visitor to the hospital reported the Medical Center's computers were still out at 8:30 in the evening.

Township police report a tree down on Birch Avenue, wires down on Moore Street and a tree and wires down on South Harrison Street near the university's Butler Housing tract.

At 3:57, Mario Bellich, 286 Glenn Avenue, Lawrence Township, fell off a roof at 533 Mercer Road and was taken to the Medical Center for treatment of a broken leg.

He is being held without bail in Trenton Jail until his case is presented to a Mercer County Grand Jury for possible indictment.

WIDOW WAS MURDERED

Police Now Say. A 37-year-old widow found dead last week in her Hunters Glen apartment in Plainsboro Township was murdered, police say.

Initially, authorities had labeled the death of Irene Schnaps, an RCA steoorapher, as "suspicious" when her body was found June 17 by a co-worker. After an autopsy was performed the following day, Assistant Middlesex Prosecutor Thomas Kapsak reported that Mrs. Schnaps had been struck repeatedly with a blunt instrument. The autopsy revealed that she had been dead for several hours.

Police warned resideots in the 700-apartment complex to lock their doors and to be on the alert for prowlers. Mr. Kapsak has declined to reveal any details of the crime "to protect the investigation."

The victim was widowed when her husband died of cancer in early April. She was last seen by a friend on June 15.

ALTERCATION AT JWS

Four Students Charged. Four juveniles, ages 14-15, have been charged with the simple assault of a John Witherspoon School student, and one, a 15-year-old, who was a former student at JWS and is now a Princeton High School freshman, has been charged with the assault of a school crossing guard. The charges stem from an incident June 13 at JWS.

According to Capt. John Petrone, the four students had struck the victim with their fists. As he proceeded to leave the school on his bicycle, he approached the school crossing guard, Frank C. Petrone who is also a janitor at the school.

The crossing guard sensed somethng was wrong and told the youth to get behind him. He told police he appeared to be afraid. The youth then pulled up his shirt to display a mark he had received during the earlier assault.

Capt. Petrone said that the school guard then left his post to go to the school's main office with the victim. They were followed by the four suspects. Just inside the school building, the 15-year-old, police said, struck Mr. Petrone in the shoulder with his fist and ran from the building. Police were called at 2:50 and Mr. Petrone was able to identify the youth who had struck him. All four have been processed by the Township Juvenile Officer, Det. Peter Savalli.

Capt. Petrone concluded that the incident apparently had begun in a hallway of the school but it is not known what started it.

SUSPECT IS CAUGHT

Charged with Theft. George W. McClendon, 34, of Trenton, has been charged by Township police with the theft of camera equipment and money from Jordan's Gift Shop in the Princeton Shopping Center. He is scheduled to appear July 16 in Township court.

Ptl. Robert Nielsen responded to a 4:24 call from the owner who had chased after McClendon when he bolted from her store. She told police she had heard a noise in her office and in checking she observed McClendon emerging from the office. When confronted he ran from the store.

The owner supplied police with a description and the direction the suspect had fled. Police followed the direction and arrested McClendon a short time later on Loomis Court. He was charged with the theft of a camera and lens from the office and the theft of $5 from another employee. All items were recovered and returned to their owners, police said.

In another incident earlier at the Shopping Center, Jeffrey L. Picard, 24, of Trenton, was charged with possession of less than 25 grams of marijuana.

Picard was observed by Det. Peter Savalli puffing on something while accompanied by two other males. When the officer approached and asked what he was smoking, Picard replied, "Just a joint."

Police later found in his possession a clear plastic bag containing green vegetation believed to be marijuana. Picard was later released, pending his court appearance here July 9.

DRUG SELLER CHARGED

Buyer, Too. A drug seller, employed by a Nassau Street store, and a buyer have been charged by Borough police with numerous drug violations following completion of an investigation.

Bruce Mullinnix, 44, of Princeton Arms North apartments in Cranbury, has been charged with possession of controlled dangerous substances with intent to distribute, distribution of CDS, possession of CDS, possession of marijuana, hashish and cocaine and possession of drug paraphernalia.

Mullinnix was later released in $5,000 bail set by Judge Russell Annich Jr. He is scheduled to appear in Borough court on July 17.

After posting bail, Mullinnix was taken to East Windsor Township where, Capt. John J. Bellow reported, he consented to a search of his apartment. East Windsor police, Capt. Bellow said, seized a suitcase containing "quite a bit" of cocaine, marijuana and other drug paraphernalia. Mullinnix, he said, faces additional charges by East Windsor police.

Also arrested Friday night in the Park Place parking lot with Mullinnix was Leslie P. Romano, 38, of Roselle. She was issued complaint summonses and later released after being charged with possession of cocaine and drug paraphernalia. When asked by police if she had purchased some cocaine from Mullinnix, she replied "yes."

Romano is also scheduled to appear in Borough court in July.

Acted on Police Tip. Borough police were initially alerted by a tip from Lawrence Township detectives that a drug deal might be going down Friday night in Princeton. Police were looking for a white male about 35, selling drugs, driving a red or rust-colored car.

Detectives Randy Sutton and William Nathan began a surveillance of the Park Place lot behind 174 Nassau Street about 10 p.m.

About 10:20, the detectives, sitting in their unmarked car, observed a white male and a female walk from a small, red compact car and get into a blue Chevrolet about 10 to 15 feet away.

According to Capt. Bellow, the detectives' attention was drawn when the two suspects appeared to be doing something on the seat between them. They observed the male suspect bring something up to his face, as though consuming some controlled substance, Capt. Bellow said. The officers radioed for assistance and approached the car.

As they neared the car, the two occupants tried to get out. The detectives advised them they were police officers and asked for identification. Both suspects were very nervous, Capt. Bellow said, as they produced identification.

When the officers flashed a light inside the car,they saw a four-inch white plastic case containing a three-inch plastic straw and a razor blade which they recognized as items commonly used to ingest cocaine.

The officers seized the case and also found a mirror, straw and coke spoon on a gold chain. After they had advised the two suspects of their rights, they asked Romano if she had cocaine in the car and she replied "yes." Above the car's sun visor they found a cigarette box containing a white powder. When the officers then asked if she had just purchased some coke she said "yes" again.

A pat search of Mullinnix uncovered a cigarette box containing a white powder and a straw. In a a subsequent search of his 1981 red Toyota, police found hashish, marijuana, and plastic baggies with a white powder believed to be cocaine. Also, drug paraphernalia, roach clips, plastic film containers with marijuana seeds and a water pipe. All the items were confiscated for examination by a police lab.

Police also arrested two men who had been at the scene near the suspect's car and had gotten into a blue van.

Capt. Bellow reported that they were later released when police were able to ascertain that they had just been in the van drinking beer and were not involved.

On Laurel Road. A party for young people on Laurel Road last week was interrupted by vandals.

Around 10:30 in the evening those at the party heard a loud crash. Police said that a garbage can had been thrown through a window at the rear of the house. The contents of three other garbage cans were overturned and set afire.

Three unidentified persons were seen running away, police said. There was no estimate of the damage.

Dr. Eugenia Shanklin, 11 Arreton Road, associate professor of anthropology at Trenton State College, has been selected from a national competition to receive a Fulbright-Hays research grant.

Dr. Shanklin's grant will provide a year's support for her to continue her research on the Kom people of Cameroon, Africa. Dr. Shanklin spent 17 months studying kinship, ritual and myth in the Kom kingdom in 1981 and 1982.

Her current research project is unique in that she plans to collaborate with an African scholar, Kom anthropologist Paul Nkwi, to produce a text on Kom history for the benefit of that people's school children. The two also plan to produce a scholarly monograph on the history of the Kom kingdom.

Dr. Shanklin is a published scholar and has spoken widely on the matriarchial Kom society. Winner of several national grants, she was recipient of a National Endowment for the Humanities Summer Seminar Fellowship to study "symbolic Anthropology" in 1983. Previous research awards included a Wenner-Gren Stipend from the Humanities Fellowship in Residence at Johns Hopkins University. In addition to her studies in Cameroon, she has done field research in Southwest Donegal, Ireland and in various locations of New York City.

Kevin Volpp, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gert Volpp, 116 Poe Road, will spend eight weeks this summer living with a host family in West Germany. He is one of seven students sponsored by FMC Corporation who will take part in the Youth for Understanding International Student Exchange Program.

The program emphasizes introducing the country and developing a personal relationship between the student and the host family. FMC has sponsored scholarships for employee children since 1977. In addition to the seven U.S. students, three from the company's international operations will be visiting this country.

Kevin competed with 79 other students to win his scholarship, which is based on scholastic achievement, extra-curricular activities and ability to function and grow in a foreign culture.

Princeton residents Susan Kay Baton, Dorothy Lupichute and Mrs. Frederick Fetzeli and Princeton Junction residents Richard M. Hawkins Jr. and JoAnne B. Special receivers, needed to pick up the station signal, are provided free to qualified listeners. At present, volunteers read five daily and 29 weekly newspapers, 25 magazines and current best-selling books.

For further information about this service, contact Audiovision, New Jersey Library for the Blind and Handicapped, 2300 Stuyvesant Avenue, Trenton, N.J. 08618, or call 800-792-8322.

KNOW YOUR TOWN

With Chamber's Help. In case you've ever wanted to know what brings people to Princeton, a survey recently completed by the Gallup Organization for the Princeton Area Chamber of Commerce will tell you.

Almost half the people interviewed (46 percent) were in town to shop. Sixteen percent were there because they work in Princeton; 14 percent because they live here; and 11 percent were visiting.

Over a third had either stopped or were planning to stop in a Princeton restaurant; 58 percent said they weren't.

Eighty-four percent of those interviewed had arrived by car, while only 11 percent had walked or bicycled. Only one percent came in by bus and one percent by train.

Half the people had parked their cars at a meter, while a quarter were parked in a Park & Shop lot.

When asked what they liked most about shopping in Princeton, most people singled out the shops, quality, atmosphere, convenience, and service.

What they liked least — by far — were the parking problems.

Twenty percent of those interviewed lived in Princeton Township and 11 percent in the Borough. Far smaller percentages came from the area surrounding Princeton, including East Windsor, Hamilton, Kendall Park, Trenton and South Brunswick.

Over one-third of those responding (36 percent) came from outside the greater Princeton area.

A rather astounding 25 percent of those polled held graduate degrees, while 29 percent were college graduates and 20 percent had attended college.

FUND RAISING IS FOCUS

Of WWNFF Program. Responding to a need expressed by college presidents of historically black colleges, The Woodrow Wilson National Fellowship Foundation, with major support from the Lilly Endowment, Inc., has developed a new program designed to aid black colleges and universities in strengthening their development and institutional advancement areas.

The purpose of the Improved Fundraising Capabilities Program is to alleviate the shortage of trained professionals in the area of fund development at black colleges. This goal is being accomplished by recruiting, selecting, training and placing applicants who have completed graduate training and have demonstrated a potential for development related work.

Before the individuals are actually placed at these institutions, the Foundation sponsors two intensive, five-day Institutes to familiarize participants with contemporary development/fund-raising strategies and techniques. The first Institute was held in May at Haverford College, Haverford, Pa., the second last week at North Carolina Central University, Durham, N.C.

Those from the Woodrow Wilson National Fellowship Program taking part were Richard Couper, president, Isaac Sanders, director of Minority Programs, and David Wilson, associate director of Minority Programs.

ARCHITECTURE FOCUS

Of University Booklet. Princeton University has issued the fourth in its series of booklets that feature walking tours of the campus. The most recent addition, available this month, is The Spires of Princeton University: An architectural tour of the campus.

Earlier titles over the past three years featured the trees of the campus, gargoyles adorning campus buildings, and the John B. Putnam Jr. sculpture collection. Each booklet provides visitors with a self-guided route through the

BUSINESS

—MERGER ANNOUNCED

By Pullman Company. The Princeton-based Pullman Company and Peabody International Corp. of Stamford, Conn., announced last week an agreement in principle to merge.

Under the tentative pact, 1.65 shares of Pullman's common stock would be exchanged for each share of Peabody common stock in a $127 million deal. The new firm would be known as The Pullman-Peabody Co.

Thomas M. Begel, Province Line Road, Hopewell Township, president and chief executive officer of Pullman, would take over as chairman and CEO of the new company.

Headquartered in Princeton, Pullman manufactures aircraft seating, galleys, food service systems, truck trailers and provides engineering, consulting and technical services in transportation industries.

Its REDM Industries serves the computer, telecommunications and defense industries. Peabody makes fluid-material handling equipment, automotive and food service equipment and environmental clean-up systems.

SHARES INCREASED

At Gulton Industries. Stockholders of Gulton Industries, Inc., at the company's annual meeting, have voted to increase the authorized shares of the company's common stock to 10 million from six million.

E. Maclin Roby, Gulton president and chief executive officer, also announced that stockholders re-elected four directors to hold office for a term of three years. They are Sidney Blaxill, advisory director of Morgan Stanley & Co., John S. Chamberlin, president and chief operating officer of Avon Products, J. David Parkinson, chairman of the board of Thomas & Betts, and Clarke Simonds, first vice-president of Drexel Burnham Lambert.

In commenting on the proposed acquisition of Altec Corporation, which is operating under the protection of the U.S. Bankruptcy Code, Mr. Roby reported that the definitive agreement had been executed and that if the court approves the sale of assets at a hearing scheduled for July 1, the transaction should be completed by the middle of July.

In concluding the meeting, Mr. Roby reported first quarter results were in accord with expectations; and backlog at the end of May reached a new high of $99.2 million — up 8.4 percent from a year ago. Fiscal 1986 results are expected to exceed those of fiscal 1985.

LICENSING AGREEMENT

PRINCETON FORRESTAL VILLAGE, PHASE I: At right-center is a six-story, 300-bed hotel, part of the Princeton Forrestal Village commercial complex that won final approval from the Plainsboro Planning Board recently. Construction will begin on the $22 million Marlott hotel in September, with completion expected within 14-16 months. The first phase of the project, to be built around the central "village green" shown above, will include more than 100 "specialty" retail shops, restaurants and cafes with offices on the 2nd and 3rd floors above. A child care center and an athletic club are also planned.

Intersection

ceed without an overpass or underpass is "a sure ticket to a traffic nightmare for everyone who uses Route 1 for miles in either direction from the Princeton Forrestal Center.

"Everyone's in agreement that there needs to be an overpass or underpass," Mr. Karel says, "but who's going to pay for it, and who's going to build it is the question. To say it is the responsibility of the state is wrong, we feel. It is a private intersection, created to benefit private developers." A grade separated interchange at that location is estimated to cost $13.5 million and is not currently on the list of DOT priorities for Route 1.

Meanwhile, the Plainsboro Township Committee introduced an ordinance last Monday night that would create a Transportation Improvement District. The TID, as it is called, is a mechanism that would allow the Township to assess the three major property owners for their fair share of one-half the cost of building the overpass. In addition to the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation and Princeton University, the third and largest property owner is Princeton Nurseries.

By setting up funding for half of the cost of an overpass, Plainsboro hopes to provide an incentive for the DOT to come up with the other half and to give construction a higher priority rating. Without the ordinance, it would eventually become necessary for the state to build the interchange and to pay the entire bill, it is felt.

Plainsboro Planning Board's approval of Phase I of Princeton Forrestal Village included a widening of College Road by the developer to five lanes in each direction across the Route 1 intersection. Toombs Development agreed to pay roughly $1 million to make these improvements. The developer estimated that Forrestal Village Phase I will generate between 1,383 and 1,670 cars an hour entering and exiting during rush hours. This comes to 23 to 28 cars a minute.

Advisory Council

ing the whole region, the study group was making its recommendation for a formal regional planning council. "Government works best when it is closest to the people," Mr. Bittner asserted. "We should use existing land use law and land use agencies to develop a regional plan."

Plainsboro Administrator Peter Hechenbleikner estimated that it might cost $100,000 to develop such a plan. The advisory council would seek those funds from the municipalities and from the private sector, he said.

A resolution incorporating the recommendation for an advisory council to develop a regional plan with the assistance of MSM was distributed to all those in attendance and will be forwarded to each municipality for consideration and formal adoption.

More than Traffic. "What might have brought us together is traffic, but there are many other issues that need to be looked at," Mr. Bittner warned. He added that it was important to involve municipalities in the process "so that they will understand what they are gaining and what they are losing."

Earlier in the evening, James A. Crawford, assistant DOT Commissioner for Transportation Services and Planning, gave a rapid-fire presentation of factors such as physical needs, problems of access, problems of financing, and implementation involved in any consideration of Route 1 improvements.

For instance, he said, it will cost $750 million if all the desired improvements in the Route 1 corridor are implemented. The de-designation of I-95 freed $75 million, which was targeted for a number of improvements throughout the central portion of the state, and the state has since earmarked an additional $20-25 million, but that leaves a great deal still to be raised. Mr. Crawford raised the question of private funding as one answer.

Middlesex County Planning Director Douglas Opalski gave an overview of needs for increased water supply, sewage treatment and open space facing Middlesex County. Mr. Opalski feels strongly that it is not only traffic concerns that are the major issue facing the region. However, he also believes that it is possible to turn U.S. 1 into "a corridor of opportunity" and spoke positively of the way the present crisis has begun to join the municipalities together.

MSM executive director Sam Hamill described his agency and its recently announced Regional Forum to deal with problems of growth. He urged those attending the dinner not to let their discussion of effective regionalism "degenerate into an abstract and unproductive discussion, form rather than substance."

University's grounds and history.

Spires highlights trends in campus building from 1750 to the present. It begins with the story of Nassau Hall and ends with a glimpse of the molecular biology building on Washington Road that is scheduled for completion in October. The booklet's four chapters outline architectural tastes predominating in colonial times, the Victorian age, the heyday of Collegiate Gothic, and the modern era.

A map in the centerfold helps readers find each building mentioned in the text, written by Laurel M. Cantor, an editor for Princeton's Office of Communications/Publications. Drawings by Heather Lovett of Hopewell and Charles McVicker of Princeton are augmented with blueprints, elevations and watercolors from the University archives.

The booklet is available at $1.40 at the Princeton University Store and at the University Art Museum. For postpaid orders, send $2.50 to the University Store.

RELIGION

NEW RABBI NAMED

By Jewish Center. The Jewish Center has named Rabbi Melvin J. Glazer as its next rabbi. He succeeds Rabbi Melvin J. Glatt, who resigned last summer after 10 years.

Rabbi Glazer, 38, has been rabbi of the West End Synagogue in Nashville, Tenn., for the past five years. He has also served congregations in South Orange and in Grand Rapids, Mich. In addition he has taught at synagogues in Philadelphia, New York City and Paramus.

Born in Atlanta, Ga., the new rabbi was educated in Philadelphia and at Columbia University where he earned a B.A. in philosophy in 1969. At the same time he earned a bachelor's degree in modern Hebrew literature from Jewish Theological Seminary. He took additional graduate studies at the Seminary and at Hebrew University in Jerusalem where he was president of seminary students in Israel. He was ordained in 1974.

Rabbi Glazer has served on the board of the Nashville Jewish Federation and the Nashville Family Service, as well as the Nashville chapter of the National Conference of Christians and Jews. He was also active in a non-profit organization providing for the "dreams" of terminally ill children and in the Jewish cultural arts committee of the Jewish Community Center.

He is married and the father of three young children. His wife Donna served as the educational director of the congregation they served in Grand Rapids and has been director of the Jewish Student Union at Vanderbilt University. She also taught at the West End Synagogue Religious School.

Rabbi Glazer and his family will move into 21 Forester Drive in July.

CO-PASTORS RESIGN

For Another Pastorate. The Rev. Mark Pickett and the Rev. Margot T. Pickett, the husband-wife team that has served as co-pastors of Christ Congregation for six years, will resign this position effective August 15. Mr. Pickett has been called to the Congregational Church of Norwich, Vt.

The couple came to Christ Congregation in 1979, not long after graduating from Princeton Theological Seminary in 1977 and 1978, respectively. Mr. Pickett is ordained in the American Baptist Church, his wife in the United Church of Christ, the two denominations with which Christ Congregation is affiliated.

The new position in Norwich is a full-time pastorate for Mr. Pickett, not a joint ministry. As they wrote in a letter to friends and members of Christ Congregation giving notice of their resignation, they thought it would be "beneficial to work separately, at least for a while." The Picketts are parents of two young daughters, and Mrs. Pickett expects to look for a part-time job once they are settled in the Norwich-Hanover, N.H. area.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Pickett were active in the Princeton Clergy Association and the Coalition for Nuclear Disarmament here. Mr. Pickett served part time on the Coalition staff as assistant director for three years before resigning in April.

LET'S TALK ABOUT

ROOTS DO KILL

with Sam DeTuro
Woodwinds Associates

A tree fails to leaf out on the first two or three feet of branches around the perimeter. One half of a tree from top to bottom has the foliage wilting. Is it a strange disease or should an accusing finger be pointed towards the ground?

Girdling roots frequently cut into the base of a tree and choke it, much like a noose around a person's neck. The damage in many cases is irreversible because the visible symptoms of it above ground do not show up right away. By the time large sections of the tree begin dying, removal of the strangling root is impractical.

The best indication of girdling roots is examination of the trunk at the soil line. If this area does not flare out but goes straight into the ground, be suspicious of roots underground growing across and against the trunk.

If the crown of the tree is not too far gone, cut the troublesome roots or root with a sharp chisel. Although removal of some roots reduces the amount of water and nutrients previously supplied to the tree, the loss is small compared to the restored capacity of the entire circumference of the trunk to function in the uptake of liquids to foliage. FEEDING the tree heavily to restore vigor and to promote healing is most important. Call WOODWINDS (924-3500) with any of your tree care questions.

Joint Historic Sites Commission Recommends Two Township Areas for Preservation Ordinance

Two historic districts — on opposite ends of Princeton's main thoroughfare — and 10 historic houses have been recommended by the Joint Historic Sites Commission for inclusion in a Township preservation ordinance.

Under the patient chairmanship of Charles St. John, the Historic Sites Commission was successful in May in getting Princeton Borough to adopt a preservation ordinance that is expected to be the model for a Township ordinance. The Borough ordinance delineates three historic districts — the Central Business District, Jugtown and the Mercer Hill area — and substitutes review by an historic preservation review committee for that of the Planning Board's Site Plan Advisory Committee when an owner wishes to make an alteration to the exterior of a structure within the district.

Because of outright opposition from some quarters, and apathetic resistance in general, it took more than 10 years to get an historic preservation ordinance passed in the Borough. In the process, an exhaustive architectural survey was made of all structures in Princeton with any claim to history. This is a voluminous report completed in 1981 and on file in the Public Library and at each municipal office.

Now it is the Township's turn. Last month Township Mayor Winthrop S. Pike appointed a five-member Ad Hoc Historic Sites Committee to begin the process again. (There have been previous attempts to introduce such a measure, none successful.)

The Ad Hoc Committee, which met last week and will meet again on Thursday, July 11, at 8 in Township Hall, consists of the patient Mr. St. John, Township Committeewoman Barbara Cantrill, Robert von Zumbusch, representing the Site Plan Review Advisory Committee, George Adriance, representing the Planning Board itself, and Sallie Griffin, interested citizen.

They are charged with studying the Borough's Historic District Preservation Ordinance; studying the list of 12 recommendations for inclusion in a Township ordinance from the Joint Historic Sites Commission; and recommending an ordinance to Township Committee. The group is to complete its work by November 30 and then disband.

OF HISTORICAL SIGNIFICANCE: This is Tusculum, the country farmhouse that Princeton President John Witherspoon built in 1773 a mile north of the college off what is now Cherry Hill Road. Although he lived more of his tenure in the President's House (now Maclean House on the front campus), Tusculum was his country retreat, and the path he followed to and fro later became Witherspoon Street. A Scotsman who came to this country in 1768 to become the sixth president of Princeton, Witherspoon served until his death 25 years later. He was also a signer of the Declaration of Independence and a leading member of the Continental Congress.

Early Settlement. Not surprisingly, the two districts that are being recommended for inclusion are sites of the earliest settlement of what later became Princeton. One is the Stony Brook area where a group of Quakers from Chesterfield Meeting bought land in the last decade of the 17th century.

The surnames of the six original families were Stockton, Clarke, Olden, Worth, Horner and Fitzrandolph — names that have persisted as street and place names today. In 1709, Benjamin Clarke gave 9.6 acres for a meeting house and burial ground for the Society of Friends. The stone meeting house was not built until the 1720's. It was severely damaged by fire in 1758-59 but rebuilt on the original foundations in 1760.

According to Constance Greiff and Mary W. Gibbons, writing in Princeton Architecture, the Meeting functioned not only as the spiritual center of the Stony Brook community but also as its welfare department, civil court and social arbiter.

Adjoining the Meeting is the Thomas Clarke house and the site of the Battle of Princeton, January 3, 1777, turning point in the American War for Independence. The Battlefield and the Thomas Clarke house were made a state park in the 1950s and subsequently listed on the National and State Register, but there are other lands along Stony Brook in the vicinity of Quaker Road and Stockton Street that figured in the events surrounding the Battle of Princeton.

These lands would be included in this district, as would the remnants of Worth's Mill, only one wall of which exists today north of the Stony Brook bridge crossing Stockton Street. The district would include portions of Stockton Street, Mercer Street and Quaker Road where there are houses that either stand on sites known to have been occupied during the earliest years of the Stony Brook settlement or that date from the earliest two or three decades of the 18th century.

An Even Earlier Settler. Almost 10 years before the first Quaker families settled at Stony Brook, Dr. Henry Greenland from Piscataway was the sole property owner in what eventually became Princeton. He owned 200 acres north and west of the Millstone River near Kingston.

That area, including the Kingston Mill and the house at 1082 Princeton-Kingston Road, the central section of which is thought to have been built by Henry Greenland in 1683 and is known to historians as the Greenland-Brinson-Gulick house, is part of the other district recommended for preservation under a Township ordinance by the Joint Historic Sites Commission.

The Kingston Mill was built on the westerly side of the Millstone River by Jacob Scudder in 1735, according to the Architectural Survey. The

DURANG PLAY DUE

As Season Opener, Princeton Summer Theatre opens its 1985 season with Beyond Therapy, a comedy by Christopher Durang.

The show will run June 27-30 and July 4-7. Thursday, Friday and Saturday shows will begin at 8; Sunday shows will begin at 4:30. All performances will take place in the Hamilton Murray Theatre, located on the Princeton University campus.

The play follows the awkward romance of Bruce (Louis Bayard) and Prudence (Anne Torsiglieri), two people trying to find the perfect love through a personal ad. We meet their therapists, Charlotte Wallace (Ruth Markoe) who idolizes the doctor from Equus and who encourages her patients by making a Snoopy doll bark; and Stuart Framingham (Robert Brink), a macho bully who once had an affair with Prudence and seeks to rekindle the flame.

The audience is left to muse over whether the patients or the therapists are in greater need of treatment. The story bounces from the therapist's couch to a restaurant without waiters and back again. It pauses briefly in Bruce's apartment, where we meet Bob (Bob Eriesson), Bruce's male lover. Somehow, these five survive an evening together. In the end, Bruce and Prudence may not have found love, but they have certainly discovered a deep and lasting friendship.

"I think that Beyond Therapy is a very human play," says director Brian Jennings. "In working with the actors, I hope that I've been able to go beyond the insane antics and breakneck pace which are characteristically Durang, and to reach that very human and very touching drama underneath. As eccentric as they may appear, Prudence, Bruce and the others are simply very lonely people who just want to be loved. They're not all that different from you and me."

Mr. Jennings is the general manager of Princeton Summer Theatre. He recently graduated from Princeton University, where he appeared in productions of Love's Labours Last, The Cocktail Porty, and Incubus. An Americon Dream Play. Last summer, he portrayed Bobby in PST's production of Say Goodnight, Grocie.

In September, he will begin study towards an MFA in acting at the National Theatre Conservatory in Denver. Beyond Therapy marks his directorial debut.

Playwright Christopher Durang won an Obie Award in 1980 for Sister Mary Ignatius Explains It All for You. His most recent work, The Marriage of Bette and Boo, is currently running in New York. Mr. Durang also contributed to "The Show of the Seven Deadly Sins" in the McCarter Theatre's recent production of Faustus in Hell.

He is a New Jersey native and a graduate of the Yale School of Drama. His work has appeared on Broadway twice: A History of the Americon Film in 1978 and Beyond Theropy in 1981.

'THE UNDOING' READY

At Mill Hill Playhouse. William Mastrosimone's The Undoing, directed by Veronica Brady, will be the first fully professional production at the Mill Hill Playhouse, Front and Montgomery Streets, in Trenton.

Produced by Dan Aubrey, in cooperation with the Trenton Artists' Workshop Association, The Undoing previews on June 27, opens June 28, and plays through July 20. Tickets are $10. For information on group sales, call 587-8085.

The professional cast of five includes Mary Martello as Lorraine Tempesta, owner of Leo's poultry shop set in the Chambersburg area of Trenton. Working in the shop is Lorraine's 17 year-old daughter Lorr, played by Katherine Kamhi. The play opens on the one-year anniversary of Leo's death.

A man named Berk Yeager, played by Larry Attile, comes to see Lorraine and ends up working for her. He turns out to be the man responsible for her husband's accidental death. Berk was drunk and ran a stop sign, killing Leo. The other two characters are neighborhood widows Mrs. Mosco and Mrs. Corvo, better known in the neighborhood as "The FBI."

Mrs. Mosca is played by Fran Anthony, and Mrs. Corvo will be portrayed by Olga Druce.

Playwright Mastrosimone, a resident of Chambersburg, has been working with the cast and director. The play was originally heard at the Actor's Theatre of Louisville and has undergone several drafts since then. Mr. Mastrosimone currently has two one-acts playing in New York, and his work will be seen next season in Los Angeles, Seattle, in motion pictures and on TV.

DOUBLE FEATURES

At Kresge, McCarter Theatre's Cummer Cinema '85 series at Kresge Auditorium will open its third week with two films focusing on the common theme of adolescent rebellion.

The two are Lindsay Anderson's IF... and Francois Truffaut's The 400 Blows. The double-bill will play through Friday and will be followed June 29-July 1 by a pair of features set in the worlds of the future: Stanley Kubrick's A Clockwork Orange and Ridley Scott's Blade Runner.

Set in an English "public" (i.e. private) school, Lindsay Anderson's 1969 classic IF... was a prophetic film about campus revolutionaries made years before such films became faddish, and also dealt with such issues as the insensitivity of institutions, the irrelevance of contemporary education and conflict between youth and tradition. The chief rebel, Mick Travis, is played by the young Malcolm McDowell, who subsequently developed the character in a second film by Anderson, O Lucky Man, dealing with the later travels of Mick Travis and his entry into the working world.

Truffaut's The 400 Blows is the movie that put the late French director "on the map" as one of the master cinema artists of our time. One of the first masterpieces of the French "new wave" cinema movement, it also marked the first screen appearance of Antoine Doinel (Jean-Pierre Leaud), the character who was to continue as Truffaut's screen alter-ego for the next 20 years in such films as Stolen Kisses and Bed and Board. The story, inspired by Truffaut's memories of his own gloomy youth, is of a boy who becomes an outcast. Unloved at home and unwanted at school, he sinks into a fugitive existence that eventually leads to reform school, a situation very much paralleling Truffaut's own unhappy childhood.

Stanley Kubrick's film A Clockwork Orange, is another contemporary classic, one that polarized the movie-going public at the time of its release in 1971; audiences either loved it or hated it. Based on the Anthony Burgess novel of the same name, the film is set in London in the "near future" when gangs of roving, adolescent Teddy Boys (like Malcolm Alex and his Droogs) rule the night dispensing plenty of the old "ultra-violence." It is a film that moves on many levels at once — psychological, social, moral, ethical. Kubrick conveys his icily brilliant vision of a future in which western society has become a mod slum. A Clockwork Orange is rated "R" with good reason, and Summer Cinema warns that it is not for the squeamish.

In Blade Runner director Ridley ("Alien") Scott creates a futuristic world that is at once Babel and Babylon, the South Bronx and Brasilia, a crust of slums about which soar the towers of the ultimate consumer society. This world is populated by "replicants," seemingly artificial humans who have been designed and perfected by genetic engineers to serve as workers and warriors. Harrison Ford is a "blade

Princeton Shopping Center on Friday, July 5. Performances will be at 5:30 and 8 p.m. Books of advance tickets are available now from the Chamber.

The featured performer in the circus is Tiny Tim, whose falsetto rendition of "Tiptoe through the Tulips" made him a nationally known figure in the 1960's. He gained further fame on the television show "Laugh In," and in 1969 when he wed 17-year-old Miss Vickie on Johnny Carson's "Tonight Show." Tiny Tim appeared in a few performances in the circus at the close of the 1984 season.

The nearly two-hour show has all the traditional circus acts, including clowns, acrobats and jugglers. Animal acts include elephants, bears, monkeys, dogs and horses.

QUIXOTE MUSICAL SET

At Open Air Theatre. The Man of La Mancha, with book by Dale Wasserman, music by Mitch Leigh and lyrics by Joe Darion, will inaugurate the summer musicals at the Open Air Theatre in Washington Crossing State Park in a production by the Princeton Community Players. Performance dates are June 27, 28, 29 and July 3, 4, 5 and 6, beginning at 8:30.

Churchill Clark, president of Princeton Community Players, is director of a large cast featuring Barry Hillman as Don Quixote, Gene Davidson as Sancho, and Marilyn Mangone as Aldonza.

Mr. Hillman, a resident of Pennington, acted at Allegheny College and studied voice for 10 years. At the Barn Theater in Montville he appeared in Sweeney Todd and Jacques Brel... and has acted professionally in dinner theater He is currently on the faculty of Dutch Neck School in West Windsor.

Gene Davidson appeared in Goodbye, Charlie and Arsenic and Old Lace for the Community Players, Fiddler on the Roof with P.J.&B., and Oedipus the King at Princeton University's Acting Studio.

Miss Mangone is a recent graduate of Glassboro State College, majoring in speech, theater and dance. She has had leading parts in Crimes of the Heort and How to Succeed in Business... and has done commercials for cable TV.

A favorite with audiences and players for nearly 20 years, Man of La Mancha broke the mold of cynicism and self-pitying despair that characterized the theater in the 1960's. With its focus on both the writer, Miguel de Cervantes, and his creation, Don Quixote, the play restored hope, courage and idealism — never mind that it was impossible realism — to the musical stage. Don Quixote's famous song of The Quest — "to bear with unbearable sorrow, to fight the unbeatable foe" — epitomizes the spirit of the play.

Musical director for Man of La Mancha is Judith Parrish, and the choreographer is Sheila Clark. Set design is by Mr. Clark, with construction by Robert Watson. Lighting is by Ralph Siegel, costumes by Lisa Watson and Kara Cluxon, and properties by David Flagg. Richard Newman is producer.

Tickets are available at the box office which is open after 4 the days of the performances. For further information call 737-1826.

HULOT FILM DUE

At Library. The Public Library will show the movie Mr. Hulat's Holiday, on Wednesday, July 3, at 8.

Jacques Tati plays the role of an amusing character who takes a summer trip to a French seaside resort. A Mickey Mouse short, The Band Concert, with Mickey as a bandleader, will precede the feature film. The free program will last 97 minutes, and everyone is invited.

Free flyers on library feature film showings are available at the library.

On Friday, eight singers accompanied by pianists Martin Butler, John Rink and Mordecai Sheinkman, will present a Schubertiad — an informal evening of Schubert's chamber music. The following Friday, July 5, eight singers, joined this time by Mr. Sheinkman and percussionist Lee Blasius, will present selections from Gioacchino Rossini's Sins of Old Age.

Both concerts will begin at 9 p.m. and will take place in the Abbott Dining Hall of The Lawrenceville School. General admission tickets at $5 will be available the night of the concert, with no advance sales or reservations.

The singers for the two concerts are sopranos Carol Haber and Carmen Pelton, mezzo-sopranos Barbara Leifer and Mary Wescott, tenors James Beal, James Broussard and Mark Hester, and baritones Brian Kerns and Boyd Schlaefer. Ms Leifer, Ms. Wescott, and Mr. Beal performed in last year's June Festival.

In addition to the concerts, Benjamin Britten's Albert Herring will be performed on June 30 and July 6, and Mozart's Don Giovanni, in an English translation by Peter Westergaard, on June 27, 29, July 3 and 7.

Nagle Jackson will direct Albert Herring. Mr. Westergaard will direct Don Giovanni, and Michael Pratt will condoct both works. Opera performances begin at 7:30 p.m. in the Kirby Arts Center of The Lawrenceville School.

For more information call 683-5468 or write to the festival at Box 1379, Princeton, 08542.

Meliora Quartet Received with Enthusiasm In First University Outdoor Chamber Concert

If audience response is a reasonable indicator of the quality of a musical performance, then the concert given Monday evening by the Meliora Quartet was one of the best of the season. After their rendition of the Haydn quartet which opened the first event of Princeton University Outdoor Chamber Concerts, the quartet had to come out for two curtain calls before the applause began to subside. And the excited chattering which followed gave voice to a pervasive feeling that this quartet is indeed an extraordinary ensemble.

Held in Richardson Auditorium due to the rain, the Quartet performed three fairly standard works from the string quartet repertoire: Haydn's Sunrise Quartet in B flat Major; Beethoven's Quartet in F Major; and Mendelssohn's Quartet in E Minor.

Throughout the concert, this youthful ensemble played spiritedly, with great enthusiasm and musicality. Each carefully rehearsed piece sounded fresh and alive, as if the players were discovering the music for the first time. Their performance was well-balanced, both dynamically and musically, and the breadth of the ensemble's expressiveness was equal to that of the finest quartets.

Opening the concert was the Haydn quartet, a work which has often received rather delicate and reserved readings. While staying fairly close to stylistic convention, the Meliora Quartet infused this work with vigor, taking full advantage of the work's intrinsic humor. Though the portamenti in the first violin were a bit over done for Haydn, the piece acquired a robust and good-natured character.

The Beethoven quartet did not fare quite as well. The musicians' enthusiastic playing led to some unevenness in ensemble. The slow movement lost some inner momentum, thus becoming less convincing than the rest of the piece. Nevertheless, the opening movement was joyous in its youthful buoyancy, and the Scherzo was crisp and sprightly.

The ensemble's performance of the Mendelssohn quartet was equally as energetic. The Scherzo was played with great intensity and the Presto agitato sparkled brilliantly. The players were also capable of rendering the sweet lyricism of Mendelssohn's long melodies in the Andante without getting overly sentimental.

This performance was received so enthusiastically that, on the third curtain call, the quartet consented to play an encore — the Andantino doucement expressif from Debussy's Quartet in G Major (Op. 10).

As beautiful and exciting as was the rest of the concert, this small work stood out as the most breathtaking music of the program. The muted strings played with subdued intensity and incredible control. The gently evolving melodies flowed effortlessly and with perfect intonation.

Other ensembles heard this year may have given performances which were more seasoned and refined, but none was as stunning as this. What the Meliora Quartet lacks in artistic maturity, it gains back a thousandfold in vitality, in freshness, and in enthusiasm for simply playing music, and doing it extraordinarily well.

What's the biggest fish ever caught with rod and reel? ... The official record is held by an Australian, Alfred Dean, who hooked a shark that weighed 2,664 pounds! ... The shark was just two inches short of being 17 feet long ... Dean made his record catch in 1959.

One of the most incredible pitching records in baseball history was set by Jack Taylor — the man known as "the pitcher who never came out of a game" ... Taylor, amazingly, pitched 188 consecutive complete games over 5 years in the big leagues, from 1901 to 1906 — pitching the full 9 innings in every one of those games and NEVER coming out for a relief pitcher at any time!

Books, Hinkson's will face PIASC, league-leading Conte-Staats will clash with second-place Andy's Tavern and C Square C will take on winless OMR. All games are played at Community Park, starting at 6:15.

The final games in round two were rained out Thursday. They will be made up at the end of the season before the start of the league playoffs on August 1 among the four teams to finish at the top in the regular season standings.

After two rounds with three makeup games to be played, Conte-Staats is on top with a 10-1 record. Andy's Tavern is a game back at 9-2, setting up their showdown meeting on Thursday.

Mike's Tavern and Princeton Italian-American Sportsman's Club are tied for third at 6-5, one game ahead of Hinkson's Stationery (5-6). C Square C and Micawber are knotted at 4-7 and OMR is 0-11.

In a game last week, Conte-Staats scored seven runs in the last three innings to defeat Mike's Tavern, 8-5. Third baseman Bobby Zinsmeister batted 3-for-3, scored two runs and batted in two for Conte's, while shortstop Gregg Smith had three hits in four appearances. The victors outhit Mike's, 16-10.

Earlier, Conte-Staats had defeated Micawber Books, 8-3, plating five runs in the fourth. Pitcher Billy McQuade, George McVaugh, Mark Boroff, Walt Brower and Smith all had two hits for Conte's. McQuade batted in three of his team's eight runs.

Tom Dunham, Frank Slimak and Alan Mokler all drove in runs for Micawber.

Andy's Tavern kept pace with a 5-1 victory over Mike's Tavern, scoring all the runs it needed in the first when it capitalized on two Mike errors and a hit for two runs. Despite seven hits, Mike's was limited to a lone run in the first inning. Andy's had nine hits.

SJC DEFEATS LEADERS

To Trail by One In Softball. In defeating league-leading Grove Plumbing, 4-1, and Dot's Girls, 7-1, last week, the Sweet Jersey Corn women's softball team has moved into sole possession of second place in the Mercer County Women's A League. SJC currently trails Grove by one game.

In their next start, the Cornsters will play the Black Jacks Thursday at 6:30 on Mercer County Park's Field 3.

In the essential win over Grove Plumbing, Sweet Jersey Corn jumped out to a 3-0 lead in the first inning on hits by Debbie Smyth, Joanne Zola, Beth Ault, Laura Johnson and a sacrifice fly by Doreen Ragazzo.

After Grove got one run back in the second, SJC increased its lead to 4-1 in the sixth on a double by Grace Durland and Ault's RBI single. Grove threatened in the bottom of the same inning but a double play erased the potential rally. Clare Baxter was the winning pitcher.

Against Dot's, Baxter was again the winning pitcher, yielding six hits.

She was supported at the plate by Sandi Hibbs who batted 3-for-3. Tango Loretangeli had two hits and Ragazzo three RBIs.

IPC In First Place. In the Mercer County Minor League, the Princeton-based IPC Communications men's softball team is in first place with an 11-3 record.

IPC will attempt to maintain its position this week when it plays a double header on Friday. It will oppose S&K Heating at 6:30 and Body By Mule at 7:30, both games scheduled for Field 1A at Mercer County Park.

Last week, IPC clubbed 18 hits en route to a 14-7 victory over the Kentucky Fried Chicken Colonels.

IPC scored five runs in the first inning and added four more in the second to take com-

NED DESMOND SELECTED

By St Louis Blues. Don't look for Princeton resident Ned Desmond to be skating for the St. Louis Blues quite yet, but in four years, he may become the first ever from this town to suit up in the National Hockey League.

The son of Owen and Carol Desmond, 159 Cedar Lane, Desmond was a third-rnund draft pick of the Blues last week, 54th overall. That's one heck of an achievement for someone who has yet to play his first intercollegiate game.

If Desmond were Canadian-born and reared, no one would think twice about the news, but few United States high school players get this kind of early recognition, and rarely one playing hockey this far snuth. Only two other American players were chosen.

The Norris division champions this past season, the Rlues made Desmond their third choice out of t1. They had spotted him playing in a pair of post-season all-star competitions in New England, and liked what they saw.

RPI Impressed Also. They weren't the only ones to he impressed with the 6'3, 205-lb defenseman. A May graduate of the Hotchkiss School in Lakeville, Cnnn., Desmond also attracted the attention of the RPI hockey coach, Mike Addesa. The Engineers were merely the best collegiate hockey team in the country last season. They blew through ECAC Division I competition and went on to capture the NCAA title.

Desmond could have had a full-ride scholarship to the Troy, NY school, but he was not comfortable with the course of studies (engineering) there. He chose to pursue a liberal arts education at Dartmouth instead.

The Big Green and RPI have been poles apart in the ECAC standings in recent years. Dartmouth had another dismal winter, finishing 10th out of 12 teams, with a 3-17-I mark. Desmond, who undoubtedly will step in as a starter at Hanover, will provide immediate help to one of the shakiest defenses in the league.

He'll have plenty of time to hone his skills in four years of college hockey, get a good education along the way, and then decide if he wants to take

Five-Game Series Crucial for Princeton Post 76

Although the season still is not quite a third of the way through, Larry Bender, manager of the Princeton Post 76 American Legion team sees an upcoming five-game series as crucial.

"It will be a good barometer if we are going to challenge," predicted Bender. "Whether we have a shot at the top or whether we resign ourselves to just trying to make the playoffs."

Anything thing less than a 3-2 split would be a disaster, reasons Bender. In fact, he adds, anything less than 4-1 and the team can forget about making a run for the top.

Post 76 followed a come-from-behind 9-7 victory over Hamilton and a 5-2 triumph over Trenton last week with a tough 5-4 loss to Hamilton on Sunday. With a 4-3 record it is in the middle of the ten-team Mercer County Legion race.

Surprising Mitchell-Davis and Bordentown are both tied for first with 7-1 records, while Hamilton is second at 6-2 and Hopewell and Hightstown are tied at 5-3.

Just how good Princeton's chances are of making a run for the top may well be answered after back-to-back games with Bordentown, the second of which will be played this Wednesday at 5:45 at Post 76's home diamond, Strubing Field on the Princeton University campus.

That will be followed by a home and home series with Ewing Post 314. Post 76 will be at Ewing for a 5:45 contest Friday and then entertain Ewing Saturday at 1 at Strubing Field.

Let One Get Away. "We let one get away," acknowledged Bender, following Sunday's 5-4 loss to Hamilton. Princeton had taken a 4-0 lead after two innings and seemed to be in control.

Post 76 used its speed to produce one run in the first inning. Mike Petrone singled and then stole second and third. After Dave Arendas had walked, Bender called for a double steal and Petrone came home with the fourth theft in the inning.

In the second, Princeton bunched three of its six hits as Chuck McColl doubled home one run and Craig Ender and Gavin Hulsman each singled home two more.

Meanwhile, Tim Rumer was pitching an air-tight game on the mound for Post 76. After retiring the first two batters in the fifth, Rumer lost his control and walked four of the next six. Rumer forced in one run, an RBI single added another, and when Jerry Chmielewski followed with a two-run single, Hamilton had tied the score at 4.

It wasn't the first time this year that Post 76 had been victimized by a two-out rally. It didn't escape the attention of Bender, who attributed it to a lack of mental concentration. "Once the kids realize it," he said, "the mental concentration will come back."

It was still either team's game to win but Hamilton starter Kevin Crary, after surviving the first two innings, began to settle down and find his rhythm. He retired 16 of the 17 batters he faced during the next five innings.

In the bottom of the seventh, Hamilton reached Post 76 reliever Mike Walker, who had won the game against Hamilton earlier in the week also in relief, for the winning run. It was unearned.

With one out and runners on first and second after a single and a walk, designated hitter Larry Bowne cracked a bouncer to second. Second baseman Dave Arendas fielded the ball and stepped on second for the force, but his throw to Rumer at first was wide, allowing John Burkhardt to score the winning run.

Two-Hitter for Pierson. Earlier in the week, Scott Pierson fired a two-hitter as Post 76 defeated winless Trenton, 5-2.

After three scoreless innings, Princeton scored in each of the last four innings, getting two in the fifth.

Mike Walker had two hits including a home run for Post 76, and Hulsman also had two hits in four at bats to account for four of Princeton's seven hits.

Walker was also instrumental in Post 76's stirring win over Hamilton to begin the week. He belted a three-run homer in the fifth when Princeton scored five runs to cut a 7-1 Hamilton lead to 7-6 and then came on to pitch two scoreless innings of relief to get the win — his first against one loss.

Post 76 continued its comeback in the sixth with a game-winning rally that netted three runs. With one out, Tom Foltiny and Hulsman singled off Kevin Crary who was to come back and defeat Princeton on Sunday. Petrone scored both runners with a triple and later came home on Hamilton's third error in the game.

Crary had relieved starter Steve Lyons who had pitched to seven batters in the fifth before he was taken out by coach Rick Freeman.

Foltiny, Rumer, Hulsman and Petrone each had two hits for the victors, who had 11 in all. Petrone and Walker combined to drive in seven of Princeton's nine runs.

At the end of the week, Bender was still of the opinion Post 76 could outhit and outpitch any team in the league. "The kids don't think there is any team better than they are. But they know we've got to bear down against the better teams. They know we've got to go out and do a better job than we've been doing."

a shot at a pro career. The Blues were not only impressed with his size, (every NHL team likes a couple of big, burly defenders) but his skating and stickhandling abilities as well.

Desmond's hockey career began naturally enough on the Baker and Princeton Day school rinks. He began playing at the age of six in the Princeton Pee Wee League, and then at PDS on its junior and varsity teams. In 1981 he won the William Smoyer award given by Princeton Youth Hockey. He started at defense for the Panthers in ninth and tenth grades and then moved on to Hotchkiss, where he started for three years and captained the team in his junior and senior years.

Desmond has played in the Garden State games each of the last two summers, gaining several honors on each occasion. At the end of his prep school career in March, he was named to the New England Junior Olympic team.

In four years, he'll know if all this preparation will translate into a career.

COACH IS NAMED

For Women's Ice Hockey. Robert Ewell has been appointed Head Coach of Women's Ice Hockey and Assistant Coach of Men's Lacrosse at Princeton University. Ewell, 36, replaces women's ice hockey coach Bill Quackenbush, who retired following the 1985 school year, and assistant men's lacrosse coach Steve Glover, who left the university to pursue a career in business.

Ewell comes to Princeton from Colby College in Waterville, Me., where he was the head women's ice hockey coach for the past seven years and the head men's lacrosse coach for the past 14 years. His ice hockey teams compiled a 75-53-4 record under his guidance.

While fulfilling his lacrosse obligations at Colby from 1971 through 1978, Ewell was a secondary school teacher and coach at Lawrence (Maine) High School and Kennett (N.H.) High School. He then became part of the permanent staff at the college, teaching physical education classes in addition to his coaching duties.

A 1971 graduate of Colby, Ewell received a master's degree in secondary school administration from the University of Maine in 1983. He has served on both the EAIAW and ECAC women's ice hockey committees.

present mill building, now a residence, dates from 1888. Two other early buildings in this neighborhood are the so-called Skillman-Forman-Gulick house at 1091 Kingston Road, the oldest part of which was advertised as new in 1763, and the Gulick-Hodge-Scott house, a Georgian brick dwelling on the north side of Herrontown Road that was part of the original Greenland farm.

The Joint Historic Sites Commission has nominated the Kingston Mill Historic District to be included in the New Jersey Register.

Individual Homes. In addition to the two districts, the Commission recommends that 10 individual residences be earmarked for inclusion in a Township preservation ordinance. They are:

• The property at 696 Nassau Street, a white clapboard Federal/Greek Revival structure that is believed to have been owned by Aaron Burr Sr., second president of the College of New Jersey.

• The property at 706 Nassau Street, built about 1850 as an addition to the Steadman house at 696 Nassau Street and subsequently moved

• Castle Howard, Princeton-Kingston Road, described in the 1981 Survey as "one of the most important 18th century estates in Princeton." It was the home of Capt. William Howard, a British army officer of pro-American sympathies, who once wrote "No Tory Talk Here" across his parlor mantelpiece.

• Maybury Hill, at 346 Snowden Lane, parts of which date to 1732. The house was the home of Aaron Hewes, a mason whose son Joseph, born there in 1730, became a member of the Continental Congress and signer of the Declaration of Independence from North Carolina.

• Tusculum, built in 1773 by Princeton University President John Witherspoon as his country farm off what is now Cherry Hill Road. During the fall of 1783, while the Continental Congress was meeting in Princeton, the Dutch Ambassador and his retinue stayed at Tusculum.

• Mansgrove, on Terhune Road, one of the oldest estates in Princeton and representative of the evolution of tenant farmhouses to great farm estates that took place in Princeton. The house was part of the Stockton holdings acquired in 1722 by Thomas Leonard, who married Susannah Stockton, widow of the first Richard Stockton, and who also owned the original Maybury Hill Plantation, adjoining what is today called Maybury Hill.

• The property at 530 Mt. Lucas Road, which dates to the mid-18th century but is chiefly interesting as the possible site of the famous Mt Lucas "Gallows Tree." A popular landmark, the Gallows Tree was a large white oak of curious shape that looked like a gallows. It was specifically protected by deed restriction, but Benjamin Griggs chopped it down in 1844, provoking a famous lawsuit.

• Colross, described in the Survey as "the only authentic Southern Georgian mansion in the vicinity of Princeton." Built in Alexandria, Va., in 1785 by one Jonathan Swift, the brick structure was dismantled in 1929 by the Munn family and reconstructed off the Great Road where it is now part of Princeton Day School.

• The Henry Mershon House at 951 Princeton-Lawrenceville Road, built before 1700 by an early settler of Maidenhead (now Lawrenceville). Its location close to or on top of the survey line that delineated the division between East and West New Jersey, and its early construction, make this house a candidate for preservation by ordinance.

• The Charles S. Olden House, later known as "Drumthwacket" at 344 Stockton Street, and the Thomas Olden house, an 18th century dwelling at the front of the property that is presently vacant and in poor condition. Drumthwacket has been a major landmark in Princeton ever since its initial construction about 1835 by Charles Smith Olden, who served as New Jersey Governor during the Civil War. It was later owned by Moses Taylor Pyne, a trustee and benefactor of Princeton. Currently owned by the state, Drumthwacket is presently the official residence for the New Jersey governor.

Township residents may wish to add input of their own to the process of drawing up an historic district preservation ordinance. The meeting on July 11 is open to the public.

ONE-YEAR REPRIEVE

For Nursery School. Sandbox Tech, the nursery school that was denied Planning Board permission to use a residence off Route 206 as a school, will remain for another year at Littlebrook School.

Sandbox Tech sought another location when its lease was not renewed by Princeton Regional Schools and its two rooms were leased instead to the Lewis Clinic. According to Diane Cronin, director of the nursery school, a compromise was reached with the school board and the clinic that will allow her to continue to operate the school for another year.

Sandbox Tech is therefore accepting applications for the fall, and there is still space in the summer program. The summer program consists of arts and crafts, music, water play and outside activities. Children from age 2½-5 are accepted.

The summer session consists of two four-week programs, running from July 1-26 and from July 29 to August 23.

The school has a morning program from 9 to 11:30 and an afternoon program from 12:30 to 4. An extended day program from 8:30 to 4:30 is also available, and flexible schedules can be arranged.

For further information call Mrs. Cronin at 924-6211 or 448-2935.
